GERMAN WOMEN NOW SEEK VOTE

Baroness De Tourinoff, Naturalized American Woman Voter, Heads Organization.

New York, Nov. 29.—(A Russian refugee, now a naturalized American woman voter, has been drafted into service in Germanoy to help progressive German women establish "The Women Voters' Organization."

She is the Baroness Leja de Toerinoff, whose husband, a Russian colonel, was killed fighting the Germans three weeks after the war began.

Later her castle near Riga was confiscated by the Communists, her jewels were stolen and she was forced to flee to New York almost penniless.

Baroness de Toerinoff quickly adapted herself. She soon found a means of livelihood as a singer. Later she became a citizen.

In July she sailed for Europe to be gone six months.

"All my property has gone," she has written back to New York. "Even the jewels I left in care of friends in Germany have long since been sold to buy food."

But there's a lighter side to her letters. German women, she writes, asked her to tell them about the experiences of American women in politics. Her discussions led to an invitation to become actively engaged in organizing women voters in various German cities, an invitation she has accepted.

The baroness was one of the guests at the wedding of Princess Hermine of Reuss to ex-Kaiser Wilhelm.

MORE BERRIES ON HOLLY THIS YEAR THAN ORDINARILY

One of the things, among the many, that Middlesboro is famous for is the magnificent holly that is so plentiful along the streams that from from the mountain sides encompassing this city.

Gray's Botany gives the following description: Ilex Opaca, (American Holly). Leaves oval, flat, the wavy margins with scattered spiny teeth; flowers in loose clusters along the base of the young branches and in the axil; calyx-teeth acute; Mois woodlands, Maine to New Jersey, near the coast, west to Southern Missouri, and southward. Flowering in June and the red berry like drupe containing six nutlets appearing in November. Tree 20 to 40 feet high, with deep green glossy foliage.

The holly this year wherever found is more thickly covered with red berries than for many years past. It is not very plentiful with berries as close to the city as in former years, due possibly to so many of the branches being broken off, thereby reducing the vitality of the trees and destroying for some years their flowering power, but one must go six to ten miles and away from the beaten path of travel.

The readers of H. Rider Haggard's story of adventure in South Africa, "She," will possibly recall that one of the main characters in that story was aptly named Holly, his physical aspect being as rugged and spiny as the tree of the same name.

Holly has been associated with Christmas decorations and spirit and with winter festivities as long as the memory of man reaches into the past. Its deep, green, glossy leaves and the bright red berries make a very attractive and noticeable contrast with the white of the snows and the bare branches of the trees of the winter time.

RED PEPPER FOR RHEUMATIC PAIN

Red Pepper Rub takes the "ouch" from sore, stiff, aching joints. It cannot hurt you, and it certainly stops that old rheumatism torture at once.

When you are suffering so you can hardly get around, just try Red Pepper Rub and you will have the quickest relief known. Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers. Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you will feel the tingling heat. In three minutes it warms the sore spot through and through. Pain and soreness are gone.

Ask any good druggist for a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub. Be sure to get the genuine, with the name Rowles on each package.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

The Backbone of The Old Reliable

Of all the excellent thru-passenger trains operated by this Railroad between Cincinnati and Memphis, and Cincinnati and New Orleans, L. & N. No. 1 has been called "The Backbone of the Old Reliable."

Leaving Cincinnati at 6:15 P. M., Louisville at 10:10 P. M., (arriving at Memphis 8:45 A. M.) leaving Nashville 3:30 A. M., Birmingham 9:17 A. M., Montgomery 12:05 Noon, Mobile 5:22 P. M., and arriving at New Orleans at 9:45 P. M., this train makes the run from Cincinnati to New Orleans in 27 hours, 30 minutes.

Day in and day out, this train probably carries more people—sleeper, chair-car and day-coach passengers; than any other south-bound train operating south of Cincinnati and Chicago, and does one of the heaviest passenger businesses of any carrier in all America.

Most excellent dining-car service, on-time arrivals, and daylight rides thru beautiful country, have earned for L. & N. No. 1, a popularity enjoyed by few trains in all the world.

A THOUGHT

We love, because he first loved us. —John 4:1.

Love one human being with warmth and purity and thou wilt love the world. The heart, in that celestial sphere of love, is like the sun in its course. From the drop on the rose to the ocean, all is for him a mirror he fills and brightens.—Jean Paul Richter.

BETTING ON FOOTBALL

Frequent quotations of betting odds in football are becoming more and more apparent, as if that were the accepted thing. This condition makes us wonder how long it will be before these followers of the game will have corrupted our one remaining game which has been a sport for sport's sake, as they have previously done baseball, and, before that, racing.

Football is a game for amateurs in the literal meaning of the word, those who play for the love of the game. It has stood out in college and high school athletics as a sport uncontaminated by commercialism, as one whose devotees are content with it for its sake only.

The trend toward making it a sport for gamblers comes as a natural sequence, we suppose. It is the same thing that has taken possession of horse racing until a true lover of this sport can not enjoy the races, and the same thing that is gradually taking possession of baseball, as the scandal of 1921 proved. When a great deal of money is changing hands in these games, there will always be players found who love money more than honor or their team, and who can be hired to betray their team. This state can not but follow if football becomes a sport for gamblers.

We do not preach a sermon on gambling and its effects one way or the other. There are men who will gamble on any thing and who always will, and we have nothing to say on this. But we do plead that they leave football alone when there is prize fighting, and world series, and all the rest to place their money on. Let us keep one true American sport.

THE END OF THE ROAD.

Alfred Noyes has a charming poem called "Sea Distances," in which he tells how a man strove his whole life long to reach the shores of a far-off island, so mystical, beautiful and alluring did it seem. Finally, in old age, he got there, but "he saw the colors die as he drew near. It towered above him, black and cold, death-cold. from peak to phantom peak a gray mist rolled." Looking back to the shores of youth he had left behind he found them to be the rosiest, most beautiful and most desirable that the world could offer. But he had lost them forever.

So it is with the end of the road. Restless and ambitious, men strive for some far-off goal. They sacrifice health to devote their strength to its obtainment. They sacrifice love that they may give all their time to its fulfillment. They give up friends, culture, even their own souls for the realization of this one aim. Then the end of the road comes and with it disillusionment. The barren rocks of empty ambition offer sad contrasts to the rosy shores of the unrecallable past.

We should remember, of course, that there is an end to the road we travel, and that we should have an aim in life, a guiding light, rather than that we should live only from day to day. However, it is necessary that we consider the present. The beauties of the road, the flowers, the trees, the birds, the pleasant persons we meet along the way, all are put there for our enjoyment. It is ingratitude to God and treason to self to repel them. To live a full life, to know the good things it holds, yet to rise above worldliness and find a fitting end of the real—that is living.

A foolish man seeks the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow while a wise man enjoys the rainbow.

RACING DEATH

Traffic cops work in the very heart of constant danger. But you rarely, if ever, hear of a traffic cop being killed or even struck by an auto.

There are two reasons for this. They are:

First: Every auto driver is more or less afraid of a uniform. He takes mighty good care not to hit the policeman in charge of traffic. Because the driver is cautious, he does not run down the traffic cop.

Second: The traffic cop, in turn is cautious. He obeys the rules of the road—does not step suddenly into the path of oncoming autos. Being cautious he escapes injury.

There you have the solution of the auto-accident problem.

Elsewhere in this issue, the Daily News prints a news story revealing the tremendous toll of auto accidents.

The truth revealed by this story is horrifying.

More than 11,00 Americans killed yearly by autos and a third are children; in addition, a property loss of at least a billion dollars a year.

If all this happened in one gigantic catastrophe—for instance, a town destroyed with 11,000 killed and a billion dollars in property destroyed—the whole nation would be shocked. But the auto-toll catastrophe comes bit by bit, a life blotted out or left ripples, a lone machine wrecked there.

And, because the toll of auto smashes does come bit by bit instead of all together, drivers and pedestrians lose sight of the fearful total and lapse into thoughtlessness—carelessness.

In this campaign to curb auto accidents generally throughout the whole country, hundreds of suggestions are being made. Many of them will be adopted—stricter traffic regulations, parking rules, erection of additional safety zones, and so on.

All these are helpful, but the toll of auto smash-ups will not—can not—be materially reduced unless the general public keeps in mind this simple rule:

The rule: In every Safety First campaign that ever has been waged, it has been learned that regulations and auto safeguards are of little help unless backed by constant personal caution.

The curb for auto accidents is not something mysterious and hotherto undiscovered. What's chiefly needed is: Cautious drivers, taking no dangerous chances. Cautious pedestrians, never risking their lives, constantly on their guard.

A certain percentage of the population chronically is reckless or in a hair-trance condition. For them, and for inexperienced children, traffic must be made as fool-proof as possible. For this purpose, no proposal can be too severe.

ONE PERSON KILLED EVERY 40 MINUTES AUTOMOBILE TOLL

mobile fatalities is steadily increasing, despite all efforts to regulate traffic.

Fatalities on Increase.

Increase in automobile traffic and corresponding increase in the percentage per 100,000 population is shown in figures for these localities show that:

In 1917, with 4,983,340 automobiles licensed, there were 6724 deaths in auto accidents, or a death from this cause of 9.0 per 100,000 population.

With 6,146,617 automobiles in 1918, there were 7525 fatalities or 9.3 per 100,000.

Autos numbered 7,588,848 in 1919. There were 7968 persons killed, or 9.4 per 100,000.

In 1920, with 9,211,296 automobiles licensed, there were 9103 fatalities, or 10.4 per 100,000 population.

There were 10,448,362 licensed automobiles operating in the United States in 1921. In the U. S. Census Bureau's registration area, which contains 82 per cent of the nation's population, there were 10,618 deaths, or 11.5 per 100,000 population.

Between 1917 and 1921, therefore, the death rate per 100,000 population from motor vehicle accidents increased about 28 per cent.

This year, there are nearly 11,000,000 motor vehicles running in the streets and roads of the United States. Everything points to the highest automobile death toll in history, the greatest record of violent death from any single cause except war.

California Leads.

California shows the greatest number of automobile fatalities per 100,000 population, and one of her cities, Los Angeles, has the highest automobile death rate of any American city of more than 100,000. There were 889 fatalities in California last year, or 24.1 deaths per 100,000 population. Los Angeles' rate is 27.9, with 170 fatalities last year. This was a decrease from 24.4 in 1920 for California, and an increase for Los Angeles from 27.1.

Mississippi has the lowest record for auto deaths, the rate being 2.7 per 100,000. South Carolina is second with 4.5.

Despite all their traffic police, their safety commissions and their other efforts to minimize accidents, the large cities present the highest death rate. Compared with the national death rate of 11.5 per 100,000 population, the death rate in 65 American cities last year was 15.6. The safest city in the United States is New Bedford, Mass. It decreased its automobile fatalities from 16 in 1918 to half that number in 1921, or 6.4 per 100,000.

New York State, with 1633 auto deaths in 1921, shows a death rate of 15.4. In the first nine months of 1922, the Empire State had 1210 fatalities, with 701 deaths up to October 1, as the 1922 toll.

Cities with the highest ratio of automobile fatalities, following Los Angeles, are: Youngstown, O., 24.3 per 100,000; Kansas City, 20.8; Chicago, 20.3; Albany, N. Y., 20; Bridgeport, Conn., 19.5; Lowell, Mass., 19.3.

"Accurate Count Impossible"

"Yearly deaths from highway traffic accidents are variously estimated at from 12,000 to 35,000," declares William P. Eno, international traffic authority. "I doubt that even official figures give a true picture of the extent of auto fatalities.

"As a matter of fact, there is no means of making an accurate count, because many of those who ultimately die from traffic accidents get home, out of town or to a hospital, and all records of the cause of the death are often lost. It is not unlikely that the total number of deaths from highway traffic is 36,000 per year, or about 100 every day."

This map of the United States shows the number of fatal automobile accidents in each state during 1921. It was compiled from the mortality records of the states—the most comprehensive survey of America's auto death harvest that has ever been made.

HEALTHY IRE

❖ ❖ ❖ ❖ By Berton Braley ❖ ❖ ❖ ❖

Though I've preached that merry laughter is a thing worth seeking after,
And enlarged upon the virtue of a smile,
There are times when it is fitter that our wrath grow hot and bitter,
When surrounding circumstances call for bile.
Anger has its healthy uses in abolishing abuses,
Which good humor is too patient to resent,
And a lot of great upheavals which have knocked out ancient evils
Are results of incandescent discontent.

There are people, for example, who incontinently trample
On the rights of any smiling-visaged bunch,
But who rapidly retire from the grim, unsmiling ire
Of the scrappy lad who packs a peppy punch.
There is often lots of merit in the motto, "Grin and bear it,"
When you find a heap of troubles in your path,
But considered as a nation we have too much toleration,
And we smile at things we ought to view with wrath.

It is silly and a scandal to be flying off the handle
At each petty thing that happens to go wrong,
But at certain times and seasons there multifarious reasons
Why our anger should be violent and strong.
Though we may find life beguiling if we keep forever smiling,
We shall leave things very much as they have been,
For to make existence better and to break each binding fetter
We have got to burn with fury, now and then!

Deep Water

BY ZOE BECKLEY

Barrett and his daughter rose. "Yes," he said, laboredly, "I'm your father. But unfortunately that does not give me the wisdom to solve the unsolvable. If I thought it would make a better home for you for me to stay on, with your mother feeling toward me as she does,—I'd put everything else out of the question. But Alice, you've been wretched at home, I've seen it. If I go, you'll have a better chance at a real home."

The girl stood up, still in a sort of dazed and helpless silence, and moved toward the door as though from a lost look at someone she had loved lying dead. It was farewell, ending on a tragic note.

Barrett sprang after her just as the door was closing upon her, caught her in his arms protectingly—and wistfully.

"Don't condemn me, daughter, without a trial. When I've gone, you'll see—see I was right. You'll understand that our lives were dead—your mother's and mine. I am not ready to give up life and be nothing more than an old house-robe and slippers! I won't be just a husband—Oh, the injustice of it! It isn't pure selfishness on my part, Alice. Your mother—wants me gone."

"I guess—you're right," said Alice in a small voice, drawing from his arms. "You're both right, you and mother. It's me that's caught—in a trap."

He was unprepared for the quick movement she made. She was out of the room and running like a deer down the stairs before he could reach her. He called; she was out of hearing. He telephoned the switchboard; she had gone.

"Well—she's young," mused Barrett. "Got the Barrett toughness of fiber. Won't go under, whereas for us to go on as we have been would crush her. No. One must go forward."

Reaching again for the telephone, he called a steamship office.

"What's the next boat for Europe?"

"Cedric, sails tomorrow."

"Don't want the Cedric. What else?"

"Zeeland, sails same day for Holland."

"Right. Book me a place on it—John Barrett. I'm on my way down to your office now to pay."

"Luck a day on us!" exclaimed that lady when she saw them. "I'm that glad to see you! My! My! It seems like old times. Do come in and tell me the news!"

"We can't stay very long," said Nancy. "We brought you a package from the Green Wizard."

Mrs. Squirrel gave a shriek of delight. "A package! Then he must have received my letter. I asked him for a magical dish-mop as I get so tired of doing dishes."

"That's just what it is," smiled Nancy, handing the squirrel lady the package. "The Green Wizard said to tell you that he hoped you would get a rest now and have more time for yourself."

When the Twins had gone, Mrs. Squirrel went back to her kitchen and began to use the magical mop on her breakfast dishes.

"This is certainly a wonderful help," she remarked, for scarcely did she touch a dish when it would be washed and dried and over in its place in the little cupboard in an instant.

So Mrs. Squirrel made acorn soup and chestnut croquettes and birch-bark buns and set them on the table.

She was hanging up a stirring spoon when she knocked the magical mop off its hoop, quite by accident. It flew across the room and touched the soup toureen, then it bounded over to the croquette platter and lastly to the bun plate. Instantly the food disappeared, laving the dishes clean.

"Scamper," said she when her son came in, "I want you to do an errand. Go over to the Green Wizard's house in the pine tree and take this package and tell him I've decided that honest work is better than all the magic in the world."

MONTHLY BUSINESS REVIEW REVEALS CONTINUED GAINS

Buying On Impressive Scale Despite Advancing Prices, Though Industry Still On Cautious, Conservative Basis.

CAR SHORTAGE MOST UNFAVORABLE FEATURE

By Associated Press

St. Louis, Nov. 29.—General business throughout the eighth federal reserve district during the last thirty days, has been marked by continued growth in confidence and activity, according to the monthly review made public today by William McC. Martin, chairman of the board and federal reserve agent. Buying has been on an impressive scale despite advancing prices with the aggressive volume the largest for this particular period since 1919, according to the report.

Some complaints were made of the backwardness in the movement of certain goods, due to the unusually warm weather, but these were mainly from the retail branch of distribution and by no means the general rule, the report pointed out. Price advances in the textile markets had the effect of arousing greater interest among merchants to in the future supplies and they are anticipating their requirements to a greater extent than heretofore, according to the review.

"While buying is still on a very cautious and conservative basis," the report stated, "It was noted that there is more of a disposition to fill out and balance stocks, which is taken as an indication of broadening in the call for merchandise by ultimate consumers, also stronger faith in business prospects during the next few months. Rather generally among reporting manufacturing and distributing interests there is expressed dissatisfaction with the rising trend of commodity prices, especially of manufactured goods, which they seem to think is progressing more swiftly than fundamental conditions warrant.

Fear Buying May Cease.

"Apprehension is felt that if the upward movement proceeds much further it may result in a cessation of buying. This feature is pointed out as the chief menace existing at present to the continued business activity.

"In virtually all of the leading manufacturing lines, production during the past month showed gains over the preceding thirty days and the corresponding period over a year ago. Among the lines in which increases were particularly marked were iron and steel, furniture, flour, boots and shoes, lumber and woodware."

The report stated that "the one extremely favorable development in the district was a general rise in prices of farm products; with advances recorded in the entire list of cereals, with wheat and corn showing particularly good gains.

"This accretion in values has served to infuse considerable optimism in the agricultural sections, and farmers are reentering the markets and buying their requirements of staple merchandise. Implement makers and distributors report heavy increases in their sales over a year ago, and the same is true of above interests and other producers of specialties largely consumed in the country. Another favorable effect of the upturn in prices of farm products has been broadened programs for next season's crops."

The most unfavorable feature in the business situation ist the car shortage, according to the review, this tie-up being blamed for hampering the operations of many industries. The roads made a good record in the matter of loadings in spite of the shortage of cars, the report stated.

Weather Good For Farmers.

"Weather conditions generally thru the district were favorable for agricultural operations of all sorts, and farmers are well up with fall work. The recent rains served to improve pastures and were of considerable benefit to the growing crops. Winter wheat seeding, which covered an unusually long period due to dry weather, has been completed, and the latest reports indicate that the plant is up to a good stand and is entering the cold weather in excellent condition. Acreages will be slightly larger than those planted in the Autumn of 1921.

"Husking of corn is progressing rapidly, with returns somewhat spotted. In certain localities quality reflects the results of the long dry spell during the growing season, but on the whole the grain is grading well up to expectations.

"Kentucky's total production is tobacco of all types is estimated at 440,400,000 pounds, an increase of about 87 per cent over 1921. The output of tobacco in Tennessee is estimated at 100,820,000 pounds. Generally the leaf this year is somewhat short, but structure fine and burning quality exceptionally good. The average yield in Kentucky was 800 pounds to the acre. With reference to the Cooperative Marketing Association in the dark Tobacco district it is stated that the association closed it books on October 28 and announced that it had received 76.1 per cent of the Green River crop, 61.1 per cent of the stemming, 67.4 per cent of the one sucker and 76.4 of the dark gred or a total of 74.3 per cent of the entire dark tobacco produced in Kentucky and Tennessee."

The Things I Have Not Had

I pray I may be glad
For the things I have not had,

Glad that somewhere they wait,
And that near, or far, or late

I shall find them, lingering so,
In the dawn or even glow

With never a trace of tears
Left by the passing years

They know no time nor space,
For they have not taken place,

Love which I never knew,
Beautiful, pure and true

Awaits, and the distant gleams
From the hearth fires of my dreams

Which will one day came to be
Such a bright reality

Glad for the past am I,
And for today's blue sky.

But I am more than glad
For the things I have not had

BIG TRUCK BREAKS THROUGH DEFECTIVE BRIDGE YESTERDAY

A loaded truck belonging to the Lone Mountain Milling company driven by Estes Walker crashed through a small bridge on the Stony Fork pike about two and one-half miles west of Middlesboro late Tuesday afternoon. The driver was not hurt though the stock of flour and feed was considerably damaged

The bridge was a wooden structure about eight feet in length, spanning a wash-out in the road, It has been there only about three months but the sweet gum sills which formed its support were said to have been rotten

The front part of the two and one-half ton truck was safely across when the rear wheels broke the timbers of the bridge and the vehicle with its cargo of flour and feed fell to the bottom of the huge gully, a distance of about eight feet Several bags of flour and feed were broken in taking

A number of men were sent by the milling company with hoisting machinery to take up the wreck this morning Mr Wilson, a man who uses the road frequently, is said to have offered to repair the bridge and charge the job to the county.

ADDITIONAL SOCIETY

Dinner for School Board and Faculty

A turkey dinner was enjoyed by the members of the city board of education and the high school faculty in the domestic science department of the Middlesboro high school from 6 to 8 o'clock last night. The dinner was prepared by the domestic science afternoon class No. 2 of which Miss Gladiola Parker is teacher. Fourteen guests were present. Supt. Bradner was toastmaster; short speeches were made by all present.

The superintendent made a short address on the subject of domestic science work. Mrs. Ray Moss delivered a speech on the subject of the improved conditions in the school this year as compared with last.

The dining table was decorated in Thanksgiving style. The menu consisted of turkey with dressing, soup, potato nests with peas, cranberry sauce, tomato salad, pumpkin pie, fruit cocktail and other delicacies befitting the occasion.

Members of the school board present were: Dr. C. K. Brosheer, P. T. Colgan, F. D. Hart, Jr., J. M. Rogan, J. H. McGiboney, H. A. McCamy and Sam Anderson.

The following members of the high school faculty were present: Supt. J. W. Bradner, Mrs. Ray Moss, Miss Susie Robbins, Beecher Flannigan, Miss Addie Fine, Miss Lillian Seay and Miss Nan Caldwell.

GRACE NETTLETON HOME ASKS MONEY FOR TEACHERS' PAY

An appeal from Grace Nettleton Home that ought to stir every heart at this season of the year, came to Middlesboro the other day. It is not an appeal for food, though they are often in need and never say anything about it; this appeal is for money to pay the teachers their salaries and carry on the necessary work of the home.

During the past year the expenses have been higher than perhaps ever before, and owing to the death of a generous contributor, several hundred dollars that usually came to the home at this season of the year comes no more. There are upwards of forty children there at the present time, nearly half of them from Bell county, it is said, and Middlesboro ought to give them a substantial donation at this season of the year when there is so much to be thankful for.

To this end the service of Thanksgiving at the First Presbyterian church tonight will be devoted, and the collection will be sent to the home immediately after the service. It is hoped the people will respond to this appeal at once, and either bring their offerings to the church tonight, or send checks to Don K. Price, treasurer, just address Middlesboro, and the money will be sent at once.

The service tonight will be one in keeping with the spirit of the day. Dr. Gray will preach on "The Thankful Heart," and Rev. Willis Thompson of the First Presbyterian church at Jellico, Tenn., will also give an address, "Some Phases of Thanksgiving." There will be special music and good congregational singing, and the public is invited. Services at 7:30.

A TALK WITH A MIDDLESBORO MAN.

Mr. H. B. Denning of 1210 Cumberland Ave., Tell His Experience.

There is nothing like a talk with one of our own citizens for giving hope and encouragement to the anxious sufferer from the dread kidney disease. We therefore give here an interview with a Middlesboro man:

"For years I have had attacks of says Mr. Denning. "I had to put hot blankets across my back to relieve me of the awful pains. Sediment and bits of gravel caused the torture. Among my customers were people who had taken Doan's Kidney Pills with good results so I used them and they cured me. I wouldn't be without Doan's in my house for I certainly want them in case I have another attack."

SURE IT DOES GOOD

Thedford's Black-Draught Liver Medicine (Vegetable) Praised by the Head of a Louisiana Family.

Lake Charles, La.—"I don't know what we would have done had we not had Black-Draught. It sure is one of the best medicines made, and am sure the best liver medicine," said Mr. Henry Garrett, of this city.

"My whole family uses it," continued Mr. Garrett. "My wife says she believes she kept off the 'flu' by taking doses of Black-Draught regularly.

"I, myself, use Black-Draught for indigestion, and it is fine.

"We used pills and tablets and other laxatives, but they never seemed to do us good, but the Black-Draught sure has, and it has come to our house to stay. We give it to our daughter for headache and torpid liver.

"I am glad to recommend anything that has been the help to my family that Black-Draught has.

"My present health is good. Have two boxes of Black-Draught in the house now."

If your liver gets out of fix, take Black-Draught. It will help to drive the bile poisons and other unhealthful matters out of your system.
